

THIS IS A REPRINT FROM Atlanta Parent
Atlanta's No. 1 Parenting Magazine
November 2006

Atlanta's No. 1 Parenting Magazine

atlanta Parent

www.atlantaparent.com November 2006

50 Best Books
(for Babies through Teens)

Thanksgiving Fun You'll Gobble Up

Just Kids: Becoming an Advocate for your Child

Family Volunteering

Sudoku: No Math, Just Fun With Numbers

justkids f.y.i

Alphabet Beats DVD: A new tool to help kids learn to write letters

HAD YOUR CHILD EVER STRUGGLED TO WRITE? This DVD created by local mom Susan Ellis and occupational therapist, Marnie Danielson uses a multi-sensory approach to teach children how to write the alphabet. The video was originally created in an effort to help Susan's autistic son Ryan learn how to write the alphabet. After two year's of Ryan not being able to learn to write, they put together visual writing demonstrations and auditory rhythmic chants. This new approach worked for them with great success. Initially designed to help autistic kids, it has also proven to be a great tool for young learners ages 2 and up. Each letter on the video has its own five-minute chapter to be approached one letter at a time. For more information about the video, visit www.thetvteacher.com.

Alphabet Beats DVD:

A new tool to help kids learn to write letters

HAS YOUR CHILD EVER STRUGGLED TO WRITE?

This DVD created by local mom Susan Ellis and occupational therapist, Marnie Danielson uses a multi-sensory approach to teach children how to write the alphabet. The video was originally created in an effort to help Susan's autistic son Ryan learn how to write the alphabet. After two year's of Ryan not being able to learn to write, they put together visual writing demonstrations and auditory rhythmic chants. This new approach worked for them with great success. Initially designed to help autistic kids, it has also proven to be a great tool for young learners ages 2 and up. Each letter on the video has its own five-minute chapter to be approached one letter at a time. For more information about the video, visit www.thetvteacher.com